

SOUL CARDS

TAROT DESCRIPTIONS

Major

ARCANA

THE FOOL

The Fool represents a person who is about to set off on a journey. They are often pictured on a high cliff, ready to step into the unknown. They make no plans, nor give thought to possible complications along the way. Always happy to be trying something different, they blindly set out where others may fear treading.

The Fool indicates the asker is about to mark a new start in life. It is the beginning of a new cycle and there is fresh energy. This card invites the asker to tap into optimism, light-heartedness and play. Life is an adventure and your potential is limitless!

THE FOOL REVERSED

The Fool reversed indicates the asker is on the verge of a new beginning, or the launch of a long-awaited project, but feels resistant to leap forward. They may fear failure and the unknown, or worry others will perceive them as unqualified or unworthy.

This card also tells the asker to let go of the need for control and trust the timing of their life. They are encouraged to embrace a child-like quality, perhaps through engaging in light-hearted activities and living in the moment.

THE MAGICIAN

This card represents new possibilities that will make the asker use their talents, originality and inventiveness. The Magician reminds us to tap into our resourcefulness. The energy of this card is very powerful. Considered the ruler of reality, the Magician has control over all circumstances. Our greatest strength comes from harnessing our inner thoughts and beliefs about the world and ourselves.

This is a great card to pull if the asker is involved in business or financial undertakings, as it indicates they have what they need to succeed. The card can also suggest an important man is coming into the asker's life, whether that be a friend, counselor or business partner.

THE MAGICIAN REVERSED

The Magician reversed can indicate the asker may be allowing limiting thoughts and beliefs to get the best of them. It is a sign they should take a moment to review their mental state and reflect on their main motivations to succeed. Are the asker's goals for their own benefit, or are they adding value to the world around them?

The Magician reversed points to the need to revisit their state of mind, as their outside reality mirrors what is within. The asker is invited to get in touch with their intuition and higher-self before actualizing their full potential.

THE HIGH PRIESTESS

The High Priestess represents dreams, knowledge and intuition. The energy of this card reminds us our inner wisdom is all-knowing, and the answers to our questions lie deep within. The challenge is to go beyond the veil of the rational mind and connect with your soul.

The asker is encouraged to trust themselves and their inner knowing. The High Priestess card symbolizes the guardian between the conscious and subconscious; she can be seen as a guide to bring us back to our core nature and follow our psychic or intuitive senses. It can also serve as a reminder to connect with your divine feminine nature and the energies of compassion, empathy and stillness.

THE HIGH PRIESTESS REVERSED

This is a sign the asker needs to look inward, seek quiet and listen to their intuition. They may be surrounded by many opinions or drama, but it is time to connect with their inner self; the part of them that is all-knowing. The High Priestess reversed indicates the asker has a strong intuition, but may be bypassing the signs because they are listening to their rational side or others' opinions.

The High Priestess also signals the asker has been neglecting their own needs and prioritizing others. This is a moment to retreat, reflect and reconnect.

THE EMPRESS

The Empress is the mother figure of the tarot deck, symbolizing love, nurture and pleasure. This card also signifies a period of growth and abundance, during which seeds that have been planted in our lives come to fruition. It often shows up when the asker is entering a creative or productive phase.

This card can also show up when we have an urge or are placed in the role of mothering others, whether they be a child, friend or family member. It may even signify the birth of a child.

The Empress is a fortunate omen for many significant life transitions. If the asker is entering a new relationship or taking it to the next level, The Empress indicates the union will be happy and long-lasting. If the asker is planning on moving, this card suggests everything will run smoothly.

The Empress is also associated with belongings, therefore marking a good time to invest in beautiful things that will spark joy.

THE EMPRESS REVERSED

The Empress reversed asks us to look inward and connect with the parts of ourselves yearning for love and mothering. People often look to others for nurturing, but the Empress reversed reminds us we must give ourselves the unconditional love and self-care we desire. Perhaps the asker has recently felt a loss of confidence, stability, or self-assurance. It is time for them to look at themselves in the mirror and embrace self-forgiveness, compassion and love.

The Empress reversed can also reveal the asker feels blocked creatively, or is running into challenges with their projects. Fears may develop around financial security, safety or their future. This card reminds the asker that unlimited abundance is within reach, and they are always supported by the Universe. Approach plans and projects with careful consideration and patience.

THE EMPEROR

The Emperor is the father figure of the tarot deck, signifying wisdom, authority and grounded energy. He has seen adversity and experienced life's triumphs and tribulations. With knowledge acquired along his path, he is able to translate it into thoughtful guidance.

This card can be a reminder to tap into inner assertiveness and leadership abilities. The asker is invited to review areas in their life that could benefit from firmer boundaries. They are encouraged to stand up for themselves and what they believe in.

If the card represents a situation, the asker can best meet the circumstances by embodying the energies of willpower, reasoning and logical analysis.

It can also signify the asker will get a new job or be promoted.

THE EMPEROR REVERSED

The Emperor reversed encourages the asker to review areas in their life where they haven't been practicing commitment and self-discipline. This could be a situation they have been avoiding or procrastinating on because it causes anxiety, or, they feel they don't have the courage to confront it. The Emperor reversed reminds us that by facing reality and committing to decisive action — even if it feels uncomfortable — helps build confidence and self-esteem.

The Emperor reversed may also point to issues with a boss, partner, father figure, or someone with strong masculine energy. The asker is invited to reflect on how and why that person is triggering them, and what they can learn about their relationship with male figures. The card can also signify the need to protect one's boundaries.

THE HIEROPHANT

The Hierophant card signifies an opportunity to connect with the divine for guidance or connection. It is also a reminder that the asker is being supported by a higher source. If they are going through a challenging period, they are also encouraged to reach out to others for support, whether that be a counselor or a friend they respect. The Hierophant often symbolizes the need to delve into the deeper meaning of life and connect with spiritual values. This may include the asker expanding their knowledge or further exploring their divine connection.

If the card represents a situation, The Hierophant is a sign to follow the safer route; it's not the right moment to take big risks.

THE HIEROPHANT REVERSED

This card is a sign to break free from the conventions that may be holding back the asker, and to look within for the answers they seek. They may be experiencing a period of confusion due to the opinions of others, or feel pressure to conform to societal conventions. The Hierophant reversed is a reminder that the asker is their own teacher, and should follow their true north and wisdom.

They also may have lost touch with their own spiritual truths, or haven't been as engaged in the rituals that keep them feeling connected. It is a sign to tune in to their intuition. Now is the time to break free of convention and trust their higher self.

THE LOVERS

The Lovers card represents connection, relationships and love. It is often indicative of an emotionally strong relationship and close bond, whether it be in a romantic partnership, friendship or family dynamic. If the asker has recently split with their partner and is seeking resolution, this card may signify they will find their way back to each other.

The Lovers card is also about duality and choice. The asker might be facing a situation where they need to decide between two different paths. This could be in their work life, living situation, relationship or another area. This card serves as a reminder that the best decisions are made when we are in touch with our value system and make choices aligned with our personal beliefs.

9

6

THE LOVERS REVERSED

The Lovers card reversed can point to conflict or disharmony in a relationship, whether it be romantic, platonic or professional. The asker may feel communication has been challenging, and they are not on the same page.

This card reminds the asker that the strains affecting their relationship present an opportunity to grow and learn. What insight is being mirrored back to the asker? There is space for healing through self-love and self-forgiveness, as well as forgiveness of their counterpart.

The second meaning can indicate feelings of unworthiness and jealousy. If the asker sees others possess things they would like, it is a sign their turn is just around the corner. The asker is invited to have compassion toward themselves, and once again, practice self-love.

THE CHARIOT

The Chariot is a card of courage, willpower and tenacity. The asker may be facing a challenge or struggle in their life where their character and drive are being tested. They are being asked to have faith and take decisive action when it comes to pursuing their dreams. It is also an indication that the situation will resolve positively and will help the asker grow spiritually and materially.

The Chariot can also represent a relationship that has recently been marked by challenges or conflict. It is a reminder to practice self-control and patience in the face of adversity and to remain calm when triggered.

If the asker is facing financial challenges and is struggling to keep their head above water, The Chariot is a sign that things will take a positive turn. The card encourages them to stay strong and determined, as they forge ahead with their goals.

7

7

THE CHARIOT REVERSED

This card reversed may indicate the asker has been facing challenges with projects and goals. They have been running into blockages or obstacles that are wearing down their spirit or motivation. This card is a sign to evaluate where they are at, and consider whether the situation presents an opportunity for greater commitment or a re-direction of their energies. If the asker is unsure, it could mean they need to pause and wait for greater clarity before continuing in a certain direction.

The Chariot reversed may also signify the asker has been trying too hard to control certain aspects of their life. The card tells them to surrender and flow with the current situation. The asker is always in the driver's seat of their life; but sometimes, the greatest control comes from release and trusting they are supported.

THE STRENGTH

The Strength card is all about inner fortitude and resilience. It reminds the asker they are much stronger than they believe. It signifies that the greatest power comes from self-confidence, compassion and gentle action. If the asker has been experiencing anger, frustration or fear, they are encouraged to confront and examine the root of those emotions first, and then move forward from a more centered and balanced place. This card ultimately represents mental and emotional endurance. The asker has the strength to face whatever challenges have arisen on their path.

For those who have recently been facing adversity, depression or physical challenges, the Strength card is a positive indication that the asker has everything they need within themselves to overcome the situation. Things will improve.

THE STRENGTH REVERSED

The Strength card reversed indicates the asker may have lost touch with their self-confidence or self-belief, feeling worn down, depleted or consumed by anxiety. This card means the asker is more resilient than they think. They are encouraged to journal and reconnect with moments in life when they exhibited courage and strength. The asker shouldn't be so hard on themselves.

The card reversed can also symbolize the asker has been feeling emotional, or may be experiencing outbursts, whether it be anger or intense crying. They must reflect on what the emotions are trying to tell them, and find healthy outlets for self-expression and healing.

THE HERMIT

The Hermit card signifies a period of introspection, quiet and reflection. The asker may be feeling depleted or at a pivotal moment in their life when they are questioning their path and encountering existential questions. The Hermit is a reminder that it is ok to retreat to their private world for a period of time. The asker is encouraged to make space for meditation, contemplation and journaling.

The Hermit reveals that the answers to life's challenges and questions can be found within. The asker is told to tap into their intuition and wisdom. This is also a powerful opportunity to explore feelings or emotions that have been repressed. By facing and releasing these feelings, the asker will feel lighter.

When The Hermit card appears, it's also an indication to pause and keep all options open in the asker's external world. More details or other sides of the story may soon arise; they are encouraged to be patient and review decisions before forging ahead.

9

THE HERMIT REVERSED

The Hermit reversed indicates the asker may have become too reclusive or isolated from the world and their support network. They have recently gone through a period of deep introspection, whether it be reflecting, building, or healing themselves on a spiritual level.

This card tells the asker to reach out and connect with others. It is through vulnerability and courage that they will achieve the connection they deeply crave. The Hermit reversed also encourages the asker to take a risk and share their authentic selves with the world. During their period of reflection, they may have deeply connected with who they truly are. It is time for the asker to share the gifts and insight that was gathered during that quiet time and courageously be themselves. They will be pleasantly surprised at the encouragement and support from others.

THE WHEEL OF FORTUNE

The Wheel of Fortune is a powerful card signifying change, karma and the cyclical nature of life. The external world is ever-evolving and shifting beyond our control, which can sometimes feel chaotic and unpredictable. The asker is being reminded to keep their inner center and emotional balance amid these challenges. They are asked to roll with the ebbs and flows of life without getting caught up in drama that may arise.

The Wheel of Fortune also symbolizes the cycle of karma, and how the energy we put forth in the world will return to us. Be mindful of your actions and mindset.

This card can often signify the asker will soon be starting a new chapter in their life. It is a reminder to be optimistic and have faith, as the Universe is supporting your path.

10

10

THE WHEEL OF FORTUNE REVERSED

The Wheel of Fortune reversed may indicate the asker feels things are going backwards or stalling in their life. Perhaps there is a pattern that seems to continually repeat, causing frustration or disappointment. This card reversed reminds the asker that repeating patterns means there is a wound that needs to be healed. The asker is invited to ask themselves what the experience might be trying to teach them. Accepting where they are and practicing forgiveness will help them break free from the cycle.

THE JUSTICE

The Justice card symbolizes truth, law and fairness. It is about restoring harmony in the face of imbalance or conflict. This card is a reminder to be accountable for our actions. If the asker has recently been seeking justice in a situation where there is litigation or a dispute, the Justice card shows the problem will come to a positive conclusion.

This card also signifies the need to face the truth about a given situation that we may have tried to overlook or avoid. The asker is encouraged to take a step back and observe the situation from a neutral and unbiased position.

Justice is a great card to pull if the asker is starting a new relationship or business partnership, as it indicates it will be harmonious..

THE JUSTICE REVERSED

Justice reversed signifies the asker may currently be in a situation they feel is unfair or challenging. This card reminds us there is a larger universal intelligence at play; the laws of karma are in effect, not necessarily because of something the asker did, but due to a higher order. Justice reversed indicates being on the right path. Although the asker might feel they do not have control and things are unjust, they have the ability to choose how to react to what is happening.

The card reversed may also indicate the asker has done something they feel goes against their morals. If such is the case, they have the opportunity to take accountability and make the situation right.

11

THE HANGED MAN

The Hanged Man often signifies the asker is currently in a holding pattern; they may feel stalled in their projects, or as though the Universe has put a pause on their life. There is a sense of waiting for a chapter to be over, so they can start anew. This card is a reminder to be patient and utilize this time to reflect, as there are many important lessons to be learned from their recent experiences.

This card can also be encouraging the asker to view life from a more spiritual perspective and tap into their heart's wisdom. If they have been pursuing goals out of alignment with their calling, this is a positive time to plan a shift. The Hanged Man tells us that the road to fulfilling our dreams often comes with some sacrifice, but this will enable the asker to achieve a greater goal.

THE HANGED MAN REVERSED

This card reversed symbolizes the asker has been feeling stuck and can't escape a particular situation. However, they don't realize they have the ability to untie the ropes binding them, and make the decision to enact change. It is all in their power.

The Hanged Man reversed is a reminder not to fight change. The time has come to let go of something; a relationship, friendship, or outdated thought patterns and habits. Although the asker may feel indecisive, as though there is no easy way out, they have tremendous universal support to make a strong shift.

THE DEATH

The Death card represents change and rebirth. The asker is undergoing a period of significant transformation in their life. They will have the opportunity to leave the past behind and start anew. This card can indicate changes in a relationship, job, or a shift in mindset, releasing old traumas. The Death card is a reminder that transitions may feel overwhelming, but are ultimately for the best. One day, the asker will look back and understand why certain events took place. They are encouraged to release their fear of a new beginning. The future is bright.

THE DEATH REVERSED

The Death card reversed indicates the asker is resisting change and the end of a cycle. They are scared to make a shift and are holding on to either a relationship, friendship, career or place that no longer serves them. This card signifies there is an invitation to grow immensely by releasing what is no longer serving them. As such, the asker will transition from the dark into the light. The space will provide an opportunity for new doors to open.

THE TEMPERANCE

The Temperance card represents balance, alchemy and moderation. It arises as a reminder for the asker to practice self-care and seek equilibrium within themselves. If they have recently been working hard or burning the candles at both ends, Temperance is a sign to make time for rest and restoration. We can only be of service to others when we feel replenished. Temperance also signifies it is a time to follow a centered path and avoid extremes.

This card is also an encouraging sign for the asker to embrace who they are and fully own their talents. Make a plan to achieve your goals in a steady and sustainable way.

THE TEMPERANCE REVERSED

This card reversed indicates the asker is experiencing imbalance in their life. They may be excessively stressed, overindulging in food or behaviours, or engaged in obsessive thoughts about a situation. Temperance reversed is a call for the asker to rest, restore their energy and return to moderation. Through surrender and self-care, there is a tremendous opportunity for healing. Through a period of self-evaluation, the asker can discover which parts of their life are out of alignment with their hopes and dreams.

THE DEVIL

The Devil symbolizes our shadow self. This includes the limiting beliefs and critical voice inside ourselves that stall our journey, and makes us feel unworthy or incapable of achieving our dreams. When this card arises, the asker is being encouraged to confront and question the inner saboteur that is holding them back. These beliefs feel real, but are in fact a mirage hiding our true power. It is a time to bring these thoughts to conscious awareness. It is also a reminder to take responsibility for our feelings and avoid projecting them onto others.

The Devil card can also represent our sexuality and a strong attraction or bond with another. It is an invitation to explore this side in a way that feels safe and enriching.

15

15

THE DEVIL REVERSED

The Devil reversed indicates the asker is about to experience a breakthrough. The power of their shadows and limiting beliefs is diminishing; they have the potential to let go of attachments to whom they used to be. This is a time for the asker to confront their deepest anxieties, fears, and realize they have the power to change.

The Devil reversed may also symbolize the asker has been hiding part of their true self, due to fear of judgement. They must release fear and embrace vulnerability with others, even if it means initiating open communication with one person.

THE TOWER

The Tower card signifies change, rebuilding and healing. There may have been a sudden change in the asker's life that felt like a lightning bolt emerged from the sky. These energies can often feel jarring, unexpected or stressful. The Tower is a sign that foundations may have been built on shaky ground, and this a positive opportunity to rebuild something stronger and more sustainable. This card is not to be feared. Everything is happening for the best.

The Tower can also signify the asker has come face-to-face with their true feelings about a situation or old traumas they can no longer ignore. There is a tremendous opportunity for release, surrender and healing. By fully acknowledging and feeling our feelings, we are given a chance to leave the past behind and start fresh.

16

THE TOWER REVERSED

The Tower reversed indicates the asker is currently going through a period of intense personal transformation. They feel they have been going through emotional challenges, or tremendous spiritual growth. This card symbolizes they are weathering the storm, and there is light at the end of the tunnel. Whatever has crumbled amidst the changes, whether internal beliefs or external realities, is meant to remain in the past. It is time for the asker to embrace where they are, and rebuild on more solid ground. The transformation is providing the groundwork for the life that was meant for them.

THE STAR

The Star card represents good luck. It suggests the asker has a dream that is about to become reality, or a specific part of their life will soon be filled with satisfaction and happiness.

The asker may have recently gone through a tumultuous or challenging time. The Star symbolizes renewed hope and belief in the future. There was much knowledge and wisdom to be gained during their struggles, and they are now reaching a period of reprieve and peace.

The Star is also reminding the asker to connect with their True North and life's purpose. They have a beautiful opportunity to explore what will bring greater fulfillment into their life and how they can best contribute to the greater good. Life's challenges help develop our empathy for others. Share your gifts to illuminate and improve the paths of others.

THE STAR REVERSED

The Star reversed signals the asker may have recently gone through a difficult time and feels a weariness of spirit. Perhaps they have lost their belief in themselves, their confidence or faith in the Universe. As a result, they may be feeling dazed or confused about life's greater plan. The Star reversed reminds us there is always a divine reason for everything, and to reconnect with your spiritual center. The best way to do this is to engage in things that light the asker up, such as activities or interests that bring them joy. It's time to heal from the past and reconnect with their soul's purpose.

THE MOON

The Moon card represents the power of the subconscious. It often signifies there are fears below the surface that are driving the asker's beliefs and actions. This card is a reminder to look below the surface of the conscious mind and uncover the thoughts that are governing their perceptions. Pay close attention to your dreams when The Moon card comes up, as they may provide clues to what has been brewing within the subconscious.

This card also invites the asker to connect with the cyclical nature of life and pay special attention to the moon's phases. If the card is pulled near a new or full moon, it is a powerful opportunity to meditate, journal and set intentions (new moon) or release (full moon).

Furthermore, this card can sometimes point to an error in communication. If the asker has upcoming travel plans, they are encouraged to review everything twice.

18

18

THE MOON REVERSED

The Moon reversed reminds the asker to tune into their intuition and follow their instincts, as opposed to relying solely on logic. If they've been dealing with fears or anxiety, this card indicates such issues are being worked on, and the light at the end of the tunnel is near. The asker is being told to reconnect with the magical side of life; to follow their inner-voice and release fears of the unknown. Clarity may not currently be present, but will soon be revealed. The asker is encouraged to pay attention to their dreams and start a dream journal.

The Moon reversed may also signal it is an emotional time in the asker's intimate relationship or with their mother. Issues are coming up only to be healed; but be patient. Don't rush to any conclusions.

THE SUN

The Sun is often recognized as the most positive card in the deck, symbolizing light, happiness and vitality. If the asker has recently gone through a challenging time, it is a positive omen that joy and abundance are around the corner. The Sun is attributed to the solar plexus chakra, embodying the energies of self-confidence and being fully present in the moment. The asker will be radiating positive energy. This card is also a reminder that behind every cloud is the dawn of a new day.

The Sun card may even predict that new love is on the way, or there will be good news about a pregnancy or a birth. It can also mean career success and material rewards.

19

19

THE SUN REVERSED

The Sun reversed is a sign to reconnect with optimism, joy and enthusiasm. The asker may have recently gone through a challenging period that has led to a weariness of spirit. Now is a time to connect with what lights you up, and brings enjoyment and happiness. Focus on gratitude and what is going right. The best is yet to come! Try to view life from the innocence of a child, and engage in activities that make you feel free. It's also a good time to practice acts of kindness toward others and revel in the light they bring to someone's day.

THE JUDGEMENT

The Judgement card symbolizes transformation, spiritual rebirth and a new beginning. The asker has reached an important pinnacle in their journey where they are given an opportunity to develop a deeper understanding of their personal consciousness and forge beyond any old wounds or limitations they've placed on their potential. There is a chance to clear the energy of the past, forgive any wrongdoings and start anew.

When it comes to making future decisions, this card signifies the importance of connecting with your higher self, using a blend of intuition and rationality rooted in the lessons you have learned.

Judgement is a positive omen if the asker has recently been working hard on a project. It indicates a positive outcome, and potentially, a new job or position.

50

20

THE JUDGEMENT REVERSED

The Judgement card reversed indicates you may be feeling stuck or have been delaying an important decision out of self-doubt or fear of the unknown. The Universe has been sending signals that it is time for the asker to step into who they were intended to be. However, they may be afraid to heed the call, or feel so lost in the day-to-day that they haven't connected with their deeper purpose. This card invites the asker to take a moment for reflection, and tune into their heart's calling.

This card may also signify the asker is feeling regret or guilt over past mistakes. Remember, you cannot change the past; every experience is accompanied by a deeper lesson and opportunity for growth. Practice self-forgiveness and let go.

THE WORLD

The World is a powerful card indicating the completion of a life phase and is marked by a sense of completion and accomplishment. The asker may have recently finished a long awaited project, achieved a dream or experienced a major life event. This card is a rite of passage, symbolizing the ending of one cycle and the start of another. There is a spiritual essence to The World card. It provides an opportunity for the asker to honour and reflect on their journey thus far; the successes and challenges they have encountered, and who they've become in the process. Take time to celebrate and express gratitude for the experiences along the way.

If the asker has been thinking about making a big change, whether it be a new job or moving, The World card is a positive indication to move forward. It also represents travel and can be a sign for the asker to broaden their horizons and immerse themselves in other cultures.

THE WORLD REVERSED

The World reversed suggests you may be procrastinating on making a decision or finishing a project. The asker is invited to review their current situation and pinpoint where there are energetic tabs open in their life. Bringing closure to situations and projects is often scary, but there's an opportunity for peace of mind and a fresh new beginning.

This card reversed is also a reminder to see life from a wider perspective. Certain situations may seem negative, but if you “zoom out” your lens, you will see the Universe is conspiring to help you. Hindsight is always 20/20. Trust the journey, and one day, you will look back and understand why everything happened as it did.

Minor

ARCANA

SWORDS

THE ACE OF SWORDS

The Aces point to new beginnings. The Ace of Swords indicates a fresh start is emerging for the asker. This is an excellent time to begin a new initiative and take decisive action on a project or career change. With hard work and dedication, all is possible! This card signifies new thoughts and ideas, ingenuity and victory.

The Ace of Swords is also about the reclamation of personal power. The asker is entering a phase where they have an opportunity to fully take the reins on their future and charge ahead with projects that utilize their creative and intellectual abilities.

The asker is also in a position of being fully in control of their love life; the Ace of Swords reminds them to use this power in a balanced way that serves both themselves and others.

THE ACE OF SWORDS REVERSED

The Ace of Swords reversed indicates the asker is in an exploratory phase, contemplating new ideas or projects. These visions have not yet come to fruition; there may be some uncertainty on how and where to start. This card is an invitation for the asker to meditate or look within to find clarity about what they truly want. Ensuring they are clear on what their intuition is telling them before sharing their plans with others will prevent the chance of being swayed in another direction.

This is a time to be decisive and take baby steps toward bigger goals. An exciting new road lies ahead!

THE TWO OF SWORDS

The Twos represent relationships, balance and harmony. The Two of Swords indicates the asker is in transition and feels they are between two worlds, whether it be jobs, relationships or in the middle of a move. It can also signify they feel they are in a tough spot, perhaps due to a recent argument with someone they care about.

This card reminds the asker to follow their intuition when making decisions and deal with conflicts directly through clear communication. It is also a signal to embrace and accept this period of uncertainty, while keeping faith that a better future will emerge.

THE TWO OF SWORDS REVERSED

The Two of Swords reversed suggests the asker has to make a decision between two options, but feels stuck and unable to make a move. They believe they don't have enough information to make a firm choice or are unclear about how they feel. This can apply to a personal relationship, family drama, career, or other dilemmas that could lead them on two difficult paths depending on their choice.

This card also reminds the asker they have everything within them to make a decision. Their intuition knows the best route to take. Sometimes, it can feel tough to trust our inner hunches, but this card indicates the full picture will soon come to light. Take action.

THE THREE OF SWORDS

The Three of Swords is a card carrying tension and heartbreak, perhaps as a result of a relationship ending, a communication failure, a bitter argument or a betrayal. The asker may be carrying grief, emotional pain or feelings of rejection. This card is a reminder that pain and sorrow are an inevitable part of the human experience. It cracks us open and touches us to our core. Without knowing pain, we cannot fully know joy and expansion. It helps us grow and shapes us into the individual we were meant to become.

The asker is reminded that no matter how much pain we may be feeling, we have control over the meaning we give to an experience. There is an opportunity for transcendence if we look to forgiveness, including self-forgiveness. Everything will be ok.

The Three of Swords may carry a medical meaning as well; anything from getting a routine injection, to undergoing an operation.

THE THREE OF SWORDS REVERSED

The Three of Swords reversed tells the asker to let go of a painful experience they may be holding on to. Forgiveness is not easy, but this card signifies an opportunity to fully feel and acknowledge their feelings, sit with the discomfort and then release it when they are ready. The asker must remember their heart and soul are strong; everything that happens in life, especially the heartbreaks and challenges, are intended to help us learn and grow toward our destiny.

This card reversed can also indicate that negative self-talk and limiting beliefs are at the heart of the asker's suffering. They must pay attention to the stories they are telling themselves about their life and potential. They have everything within them to succeed.

THE FOUR OF SWORDS

The Four of Swords represents reflection, solitude and recuperation. If the asker has recently been going through a period of hard work, this card indicates they need time for rest and self-care. Take a moment to recharge and focus on fostering inner peace.

If the asker has recently gone through a betrayal or challenge, the Four of Swords is a reminder to take a step back and allow themselves space to fully grieve or process their feelings. As opposed to jumping into new activities or a relationship to distract from the pain, the asker can gain much from a period of solitude.

THE FOUR OF SWORDS REVERSED

The Four of Swords reversed, much like the upright meaning, is a sign the asker needs to take time off to rest and recharge. They have been experiencing frantic energy, and may be feeling very stressed, anxious or overwhelmed. This card reminds us we are of no service to anyone if we are running on empty. The asker is encouraged to take a moment to step back from their daily life by planning a weekend getaway, doing a social media detox, or incorporating mindfulness practices into their routine. This can include meditating, journaling, nature walks or long baths. Our productivity and ability to be there for others is only heightened when we fill up our own well first. We must make tending to our inner state a priority and an act of self-love.

THE FIVE OF SWORDS

The Five of Swords can represent conflict, a feeling of loss or procrastination. The asker may have recently experienced an argument with a loved one, which left them feeling sad or hurt. This card is a reminder to take accountability for the ways they have contributed to the situation; to put aside their pride and attempt to make amends if the relationship is important to them.

This card can also show up if the asker has been procrastinating or avoiding an important project. It is a signal to get more organized and make a commitment to completing this task. Doing so will help dispel anxiety and worry.

THE FIVE OF SWORDS REVERSED

The Five of Swords reversed can often show up when the asker is having trouble moving on from someone in their life, or feel they are in a never-ending power struggle. This card indicates a desire for closure, and the opportunity to finally make peace or put the situation behind them. We may decide to walk away feeling defeated or as though we lost something; but know that sometimes, making a decision to release anger or bitterness is a triumph in and of itself.

This card can also show up when the asker is feeling unfocused in their energy, or are not making progress on a project despite their constant efforts. The asker is encouraged to be patient with themselves and focus on taking small, consistent steps in the direction they are hoping to go toward.

THE SIX OF SWORDS

The Six of Swords represents transition, change and holding on to the past. The asker is currently going through a transformational period that involves shifts in their love life, career or living situation. This card is a reminder that while change is never easy, we must fully accept and surrender to the discomfort and trust that the path ahead will reveal itself. The Six of Swords also signals the need to fully let go of the past and feelings of victimization.

If the asker is looking to move, the Six of Swords is a positive omen that their new home will feel more harmonious and comfortable.

This card can also symbolize a trip the asker will need to take alone. They may be feeling separation anxiety from loved ones, but are making the right decision for their future.

THE SIX OF SWORDS REVERSED

The Six of Swords reversed indicates the asker may feel stuck in a situation or circumstance. They have been procrastinating on making a change out of fear of discomfort and the unknown, hoping everything will resolve on its own. This card is a reminder that discomfort is sometimes a necessary stepping stone toward a happier future. Positive developments will show up along their path, but they must take the leap and embrace their inner strength. If they are able to take this leap, they will look back with so much appreciation and understanding of why things happened the way they did. It is time to align with their warrior spirit.

THE SEVEN OF SWORDS

The Seven of Swords represents a heavy burden, deception and the need for strategic thinking. The asker may be carrying a load on their shoulders; this card is a reminder that there has been a shadow dragging beside them that must be released. The asker may have also recently experienced a betrayal. Keep your eyes wide open and be fully honest about situations that are occurring.

This card also symbolizes the need for smart and strategic thinking in the face of a current challenge. The asker has the foresight, resourcefulness and skills needed to overcome any obstacle. There will be a lot of positivity coming their way.

THE SEVEN OF SWORDS REVERSED

The Seven of Swords reversed often indicates a desire to live more honestly and with a renewed conscience. If the asker has been living with something weighing on their heart, this card encourages them to either come clean, or find ways of dealing with guilt or shame.

The Seven of Swords also serves as a reminder to be street smart and pay close attention to details in all business relationships or contracts.

Reversed, it may also come up when the asker is doubting their sense of worth. They can practice affirmations, journal and reflect on their strengths and capabilities.

THE EIGHT OF SWORDS

The Eight of Swords represents a victim mentality, unworthiness or fear. The asker may feel they are in a situation they can't escape, or do not know which road to take. This card shows up as a reminder that there is light at the end of the tunnel and a way out of their predicament. The most important step is releasing limiting beliefs, especially feelings of victimization at the hands of another, or a sense of unworthiness due to recent events. The situation is not as bad as they imagine! Tear off the blinders and review possible solutions to make a getaway

THE EIGHT OF SWORDS REVERSED

The Eight of Swords reversed is a strong reminder to not let negative self-talk or victim stories run your life. This card indicates the asker's largest barrier to success has been their own inner critic and self-sabotaging tendencies. They have everything they need within them at this moment to achieve their dreams. The Eight of Swords is a call to remove the blinders and break free from these engrained thought patterns. Spend time on healing, whether through speaking with a life coach or therapist, journaling, energy work or uncovering subconscious beliefs about worthiness and where they originated. It is never too late to start with a fresh slate.

THE NINE OF SWORDS

The Nine of Swords represents anxiety, worry and limiting beliefs. The asker may be experiencing sleepless nights over a situation, or could be in a period of depression. This card signals that these feelings stem from the asker's inner saboteur or shadow. We all have limiting beliefs we've adopted from past experiences or traumas. The Nine of Swords reveals we have the power to make a change in our mindset. The asker is encouraged to reach out for support and examine the root cause of their feelings. The situation is not as bad as it appears and things will soon improve.

THE NINE OF SWORDS REVERSED

The Nine of Swords reversed, similar to the upright card, indicates anxiety or fear has been keeping the asker up at night. They are caught in a spiral caused by their limiting beliefs. They may feel stuck and unsure of how to break the pattern. This card invites us to look and question our underlying beliefs and where they originated. The asker can reflect on feelings of unworthiness and journal on factors in their life that point to how wonderful and worthy they are. Consider getting support from a coach or therapist if needed.

This card can also reveal the asker has been working hard to break these subconscious cycles and is making progress! It is time to congratulate themselves on how far they have come!

THE TEN OF SWORDS

The Ten of Swords represents endings, betrayal and fear. The asker may have recently been hurt by the actions of another. This betrayal felt like the final blow in a string of recent experiences within that relationship or situation. This card indicates that circumstances can only go uphill from here. It is also a reminder that it is ok to feel sadness or fear, but an important part of the journey will be releasing feelings of victimization or the desire for pity from others. The Ten of Swords marks the end of a cycle, but the beginning of a better one. Light is at the end of the tunnel.

THE TEN OF SWORDS REVERSED

The Ten of Swords reversed indicates the asker is having a hard time moving on after a recent betrayal or loss. They have repressed their sadness about the situation and may be holding onto resentment or anger. This card is a sign to follow honour and express your feelings in order to release old wounds. It is time to fully acknowledge what happened and let go. This card can also mean the clouds are finally parting and better days lie ahead. There is an opportunity to make a major breakthrough and enter a new phase of life that is more peaceful and fulfilling.

THE PAGE OF SWORDS

The Page of Swords represents communication, innovation and moving forward with projects. The asker may be brimming with new ideas or enthusiasm, and exploring ways to publicly share them. Although setbacks will always be encountered along the way, this card is a signal to move forward with confidence and determination. It is a moment for the asker to let down their defenses, release fear of how they will be perceived, and share their gifts.

The Page of Swords could also indicate someone is speaking about the asker to others, or there is an important contract or letter to review. Proceed with open eyes.

THE PAGE OF SWORDS REVERSED

The Page of Swords reversed tells the asker to review how they are communicating with themselves and others. They must ensure they are meticulous with their word, and be aware of the language they use to get their point across. This card is a reminder that words are powerful and their effects can be long-lasting.

Similar to the upright card, the Page of Swords reversed may also signify the asker has been shy to publicly express their true self for fear of rejection or what others think. They have knowledge of value to share with others and the world. There is no safer time than the present to share their voice!

THE KNIGHT OF SWORDS

The Knight of Swords represents energy, speed and determination. The asker is highly ambitious and motivated to manifest their ideas. This card is a reminder to slow down and enjoy the journey. Productivity has often been glorified in society, but often comes at the detriment of personal fulfillment. The Knight of Swords tells us to move forward methodically with a decisive plan, but also take time to smell the roses.

This card also signifies the asker's goals are within reach! They are ready to bring their plans into reality with focus, strength and courage.

THE KNIGHT OF SWORDS REVERSED

The Knight of Swords reversed indicates the asker is either scattering their energy in too many places, or is going full speed ahead with a decision without a plan. This card is a reminder to slow down, take a breath and reflect on where they are channeling their energy. They must ensure their mind, body and spirit are aligned before taking decisive action.

This card is also a sign they must take time to connect with their inner voice. When we are going a hundred miles an hour, we often lose sight of our soul's ultimate purpose. It is important to ensure how we are leading our life is harmonized and prioritized as much as what we are doing.

THE QUEEN OF SWORDS

The Queen of Swords represents strength, intellectual power, high perceptivity and boundaries. As an archetype, the Queen is charming and highly attuned to accuracy and detail.

The asker may be experiencing fear about stepping into their full power. This could include struggles with setting boundaries or expressing their voice. The Queen of Swords does not apologize for her opinions; she decisively shares her knowledge from a place of inner strength. This card is a reminder that living your purpose will require the implementation of boundaries and self-expression without apology. Every baby step counts. The asker is encouraged to begin fully owning who they are.

This card also signals the tides are turning for the better; if the asker has been experiencing a difficult time, they will emerge feeling proud and strong.

THE QUEEN OF SWORDS REVERSED

The Queen of Swords reversed often indicates the asker has been allowing their emotions to overtake decision-making. This card reminds them to bring an objective, clear-minded approach to a situation in their life. They may have been focusing all their attention on personal relationships, becoming deeply invested. The asker must take time to center themselves and make decisions from a calm and collected place.

This card can also suggest the asker has been isolating too much. It is ok to ask for support or work as a team toward a common goal.

THE KING OF SWORDS

The King of Swords represents logic, reason and authority. He embodies the energy of a strong listener and communicator. This card is a reminder to bring objectivity and clarity of judgement to a situation in life. It may require taking time away from the challenge at hand to develop a different perspective. It can even be a signal to seek advice from a professional.

The King of Swords also tells us not to be too rigid or make decisions based on assumptions. Inform yourself as much as possible before jumping to any conclusion.

THE KING OF SWORDS REVERSED

The King of Swords reversed is all about integrity and the right use of power. This card is a reminder that authentic power comes from within; it is self-assured, confident and logical in its approach. The asker should ensure they are using their own power with integrity, in alignment with their soul's higher purpose. Sometimes, we can get veered off course by the ego and its attempt for control or the limelight. The King of Swords reversed encourages the asker to review how they are using power in their life.

This card may also represent someone else in the asker's life who is misusing their power or showing off. Remember, we cannot control others' actions; we can only control our reactions. Boundaries are important, but refrain from engaging in dramatic exchanges.

Minor

ARCANA

PENTACLES

THE ACE OF PENTACLES

The Aces point to new beginnings. The Ace of Pentacles represents abundance, financial prosperity and manifestation. This card tells the asker to take initiative and act on new projects, businesses or initiatives aligned with their values, that will also strengthen their sense of self. Life will be busy and full of excitement.

This card also signifies abundance and prosperity in finances and personal fulfillment. Money can be on the way; anything from a gift, a raise or even an engagement ring. Practice gratitude during this time and the blessings will be amplified.

THE ACE OF PENTACLES REVERSED

The Ace of Pentacles reversed indicates the asker may feel they are running into delays with projects, a new business or in their personal life. It may seem things are not moving forward in the way they envisioned. It is a time to review their plan and ensure their approach is structurally sound. Don't be scared to get professional advice or input.

If the asker feels their plan has the right foundation, this card reversed can mean their limiting beliefs or anxiety are in the way of moving forward with a vision. It also serves as a reminder to believe in themselves and practice resilience and courage.

Additionally, The Ace of Pentacles reversed is a sign to be careful with budgeting right now, and not take on extra financial obligations. The asker should live within their means and avoid large purchases for the time being.

THE TWO OF PENTACLES

The Twos are all about relationships, balance and harmony. The Two of Pentacles signifies the asker is multi-tasking and attempting to balance many responsibilities. There may have also been recent, unexpected events added to the mix. This card reminds the asker that life is constantly in flux, but to trust the process and be flexible with changes that have arisen.

This card can also mean the asker needs to implement more organization in their routine. They should determine which resources will help them feel less overwhelmed, whether it be hiring additional help or seeking the advice of a coach. The asker is also encouraged to bring more balance into their life and carve out time for self-care.

THE TWO OF PENTACLES REVERSED

Two of Pentacles reversed indicates the asker is juggling many responsibilities and feels overwhelmed. It is a sign to step back for a moment, breathe and find ways to center yourself amidst the perceived chaos. Consider incorporating meditation, yoga, journaling or another mindful activity that resonates in daily practice. From there, the asker is encouraged to get organized from a centered place. Create budgets, to-do lists or any other strategies that will help organize their commitments. This will help create a deeper feeling of security and empowerment. The Two of Pentacles reminds us that whatever we are dedicating our energy to is what we are currently committed to. The asker has the opportunity to evaluate areas of their life that are not in alignment with their values. Remain flexible and good humoured in the process.

THE THREE OF PENTACLES

The Three of Pentacles represents expanding skills and knowledge, teamwork and implementation. This card is a sign that the asker will be able to achieve greater success with the collaborative support of a team whose skills complement their own; or, they are already experiencing success within a team dynamic.

This card can also be a positive sign for the asker to expand their knowledge or skills that will help their career reach the next level.

Furthermore, the Three of Pentacles can be a positive omen; the asker has been implementing their goals and will be successful. Hard work will soon pay off and a reward can be expected, whether financial or simply a deep satisfaction and pride knowing they had the willpower to persevere.

THE THREE OF PENTACLES REVERSED

The Three of Pentacles reversed may indicate a lack of harmony or cooperation between the asker and their colleagues, teammates or within other group dynamics. The asker may feel their work is undervalued or unappreciated; that teammates or friends are getting more attention or recognition, or they might be comparing themselves to others.

This card can also signify a lack of motivation or commitment in the asker's work. The Three of Pentacles reversed is a reminder to evaluate the situation from a higher perspective and look for the lesson. There is an opportunity for personal growth. Any feelings of conflict with others, or frustration with ourselves, is mirroring back with the intention to help us grow.

THE FOUR OF PENTACLES

The Four of Pentacles represents our financial mindset. This card tells the asker to review their relationship with money. Do they possess a mindset of scarcity and fear of not having enough? Or are they mismanaging their money and overspending? This card encourages the asker to reassess the belief systems underpinning their financial life, while also considering implementing new habits or a financial plan for the future. It is also a reminder to not let the material side of life take precedence.

This card sometimes arises when the asker has finally achieved a sense of security and abundance in their life, leading to feelings of satisfaction and relaxation.

THE FOUR OF PENTACLES REVERSED

The Four of Pentacles reversed reminds the asker to let go in any area of their life where they have been trying to overly control an outcome. This could include holding on to unresolved situations with people, anxiety over finances or possessions. It is a time to surrender and trust everything will work out as it is meant to. This does not mean avoiding a situation or withholding their voice; but rather, sharing their truth or doing what they can, and then letting go of what happens afterwards.

This card reversed also reminds us not to put too much emphasis on the material side of life. Focus on gratitude.

THE FIVE OF PENTACLES

The Five of Pentacles card represents financial stress, poverty consciousness or a lack of self-esteem. It can often signify the asker is stressed about their financial situation, fearing they might lose their job or be unable to make ends meet. This card may also come up if they are stuck in a scarcity mindset and worry they will never be able to achieve their dreams.

The Five of Pentacles reminds the asker to foster self-belief and have faith in the power of their potential and resourcefulness. It is also a call to focus on what is abundant in life and practice gratitude. By acknowledging their blessings, the Universe will know the asker is ready for a shift. They have the potential to turn things around.

THE FIVE OF PENTACLES REVERSED

The Five of Pentacles reversed is a positive omen if the asker feels they have been struggling lately. It is a sign of progress and that the Universe will be sending support. However, this card reminds the asker to believe in themselves and their self-worth. They have the capability to improve things in their life. They are encouraged to evaluate how the energy they give to people and situations leaves them feeling drained or out of touch with their true self.

This card tells us to connect to our power and capabilities. If the asker is facing financial challenges, the Five of Pentacles reversed is especially significant; they are called to appreciate what they have in life, recognize all the abundance that surrounds them in other ways, and work on their mindset around money.

THE SIX OF PENTACLES

The Six of Pentacles represents financial harmony, charity and generosity. This card suggests the asker has cultivated positive karma by sharing their abundance with others. They may have recently provided someone they trust a loan or supported the less fortunate. The Six of Pentacles is a reminder that the goodness we put out into the world always returns to us in some form. We are all connected, and every time we reach out to support others and see the humanity in people, we are making a huge impact.

This card can also indicate there is good financial news on the way. The asker may inherit money or receive a generous gift. However prosperity enters their life, they are encouraged to share the abundance with loved ones.

THE SIX OF PENTACLES REVERSED

The Six of Pentacles reversed can indicate there is a lack of balance in relationships; the asker has been giving so much, but has not received an equal share in return. Someone may be taking advantage of their generosity, or there is an unequal flow of energy and effort. This card reminds us that the goodness we put out into the world ultimately flows back to us, though not necessarily from the person to whom we have granted it. However, it is important for the asker to review their relationships and see which ones feel draining or imbalanced. The Six of Pentacles also tells the asker to focus on self-care. It's time to treat themselves to something that makes them happy, such as a massage, mini trip or even a new pair of shoes.

THE SEVEN OF PENTACLES

The Seven of Pentacles represent long-term vision, sustainability and assessment. This card indicates the asker has been cultivating their goals through hard work and determination. Although the seeds they have planted are not yet ready for harvest, the asker is invited to step back and appreciate how far they have come. They should be proud of their progress. The Seven of Pentacles is an invitation to project a long-term vision. Remember, the best rewards come from sustained effort over time, as opposed to quick wins. The asker may feel that not enough progress has been made; if such is the case, patience and foresight are encouraged. Also take the time to invest in a solid financial plan that matches the overarching goals.

THE SEVEN OF PENTACLES REVERSED

The Seven of Pentacles reversed may indicate the asker has not been receiving a return on the investment they put into a project, job or relationship. The energy and resources they provided have not reaped the harvest they envisioned. Now is the time for the asker to re-evaluate where they are putting their energy, and discern what is working and what is not. They must be very specific about what they can do to turn things around, or decide if it is time to walk away.

This card can even suggest they have not been fully investing themselves, or have been procrastinating; hence the lack of progress. Self-reflection is needed on the most effective way to move forward.

THE EIGHT OF PENTACLES

The Eight of Pentacles represents mastery; learning new skills and honing a craft. This card encourages the asker to further their education or skills in their industry, or immerse themselves in their craft. It is a new beginning and a chance to move to the next level in terms of work or finances.

The Eight of Pentacles reminds the asker they are more than capable of building a career that is both emotionally and financially satisfying. As opposed to just enduring their work, there is an opportunity to be fully present and make a concerted effort with every task that is performed.

This card is a positive sign to follow through with goals, as they will lead to success in the long-term.

THE EIGHT OF PENTACLES REVERSED

The Eight of Pentacles reversed may indicate the asker has been experiencing tunnel vision and is consumed by a specific project, which is not leading to the desired outcome. They may be trying to overly control the direction of a situation and rush to completion. This card encourages the asker to take a step back and ensure they are approaching their goal the right way. Are they too focused on perfection? Are they approaching their work with ease and an emphasis on contribution?

The Eight of Pentacles reversed also signifies the asker needs to take a break and rest. They might be too fixated on career and finances to the detriment of the other areas in their life, including spiritual connection. Follow inner wisdom and adjust course accordingly.

THE NINE OF PENTACLES

The Nine of Pentacles represents material security, enjoyment and financial freedom. This card shows up as a reminder for the asker to enjoy the fruits of their labour. Savour the finer things in life, whether it be a trip to a new place, a beautiful meal or redecorating a home. The Nine of Pentacles involves cultivating an abundant mindset, and then translating it into your external environment in ways that bring fulfillment.

This card can also come as a positive indication that better times are around the corner. If the asker has been in the process of moving or is experiencing troubles at home, there will soon be a shift toward a new beginning.

THE NINE OF PENTACLES REVERSED

The Nine of Pentacles reversed tells the asker to evaluate their life and what is no longer aligned with their vibration and sense of self-worth. They may have recently gone through a period in which they questioned themselves and their value. As such, they may have been attached to relationships, jobs or material goods as a way to fill the void. It is time to take inventory of their life and release what is holding them back. They may not see anything new on the horizon yet, but with patience and faith, space will be created for something better to emerge. The asker is also encouraged to review their personal beliefs and let go of any stories that are no longer serving them in their evolution.

THE TEN OF PENTACLES

The Ten of Pentacles represents legacy, accomplishment and financial abundance. The asker has reached a pinnacle in their journey, recently completing an important career or life milestone through hard work and persistence. This card encourages them to pause and reflect on their legacy, and the impact they want to make on the world with their contributions. How can they build a lasting foundation now that will reap even greater rewards later?

This card is also about family ties and cultivating deep bonds. It serves as a reminder to spend time with your loved ones and build memories. To add, this card is a positive omen if the asker is hoping to grow their family. It symbolizes abundance and a happy home life.

THE TEN OF PENTACLES REVERSED

The Ten of Pentacles reversed indicates the asker has lost sight of the big picture of their life and what is truly important. They may be hyper focused on finances and unable to see the other blessings in their life. This card can also signify the asker has recently gone through a challenging time and may be feeling a lack of security. It is a reminder that at this very moment, you have everything you need to tap into happiness. The image of wealth is one that promises positive emotions, when in reality, those emotions are accessible in the present. The asker must be aware of what they can and cannot control, and know they have the capability to find security from within.

THE PAGE OF PENTACLES

The Page of Pentacles represents new beginnings, passion and the start of new endeavours. The asker may be looking to make a career change, or begin an entrepreneurial pursuit. The energy of this card speaks to the motivation needed to manifest goals. It also signifies a desire to learn and expand their skill set.

This card reminds the asker to remain passionate and in touch with the original drive that propelled this project. Perfectionism or fear of failure can sometimes stop us in our tracks. The asker is invited to remain committed to their path with enthusiasm and patience

THE PAGE OF PENTACLES REVERSED

The Page of Pentacles reversed often shows up when the asker has lost sight of why they started a project or pursued a passion as a career. They may be feeling scattered, stuck or a loss of excitement. Distraction abounds and they are unable to focus on larger goals. This card invites the asker to reinvigorate their mind and invite joy, gratitude and love back into their craft. This could mean exploring their creativity in a new way with no expectations of the outcome, or journaling on the vision of why they started in the first place.

The Page of Pentacles reversed also signifies that important life lessons are coming up to be examined and reviewed. Explore the deeper meaning of what challenges have been present lately.

THE KNIGHT OF PENTACLES

The Knight of Pentacles represents hard work, a methodological approach and routine. If the asker is currently midway through a project, this card is a reminder to remain consistent and committed to their goals. The Knight of Pentacles embodies the energy of planning, and taking a tried and tested approach. Now is the time to create strong routines and habits that will keep the asker on their path toward manifesting their dreams. The Knight of Pentacles also often represents a plan or goal that will come to fruition much faster than anticipated.

This card may even signify that challenges or mistakes along the way are important milestones on the road to success. All missteps are pivotal learning experiences..

THE KNIGHT OF PENTACLES REVERSED

The Knight of Pentacles reversed tells the asker to remain focused and disciplined with their goals. Do not give up! They are encouraged to practice commitment and implement routines to support their efforts. Release any perfectionist tendencies, and accept that things may not happen on the exact timeline, or in the way they were expecting. Although it will not be as they imagined, the asker's path is divinely supported. They must be flexible and willing to adjust their course. This card can also mean the asker feels they are stuck in a rut or bored. Create a change of scenery if needed, but remain in the present. Things will get easier!

THE QUEEN OF PENTACLES

The Queen of Pentacles represents mothering energy, generosity and security. This archetype is sensitive and wise; she is also very grounded in the present moment and appreciates the abundance she has manifested.

This card shows up as an encouraging sign. The asker has been working hard, doing a great job tending to the material needs of the household or taking care of others. It is a time to be compassionate with oneself. Consider booking a trip to the spa or engaging in other self-care activities.

The Queen of Pentacles also symbolizes independence and success after a long period of effort. The asker's challenging uphill journey is reaching completion; there is now an opportunity to enjoy the fruits of their labour in the lush garden they worked so hard to grow.

THE QUEEN OF PENTACLES REVERSED

The Queen of Pentacles reversed often shows up when the asker has been going through a period where they are focused on nurturing themselves mentally, physically and financially. The Queen is sensitive, centered and generous. She is turning these loving energies inward to show love and caring toward herself. Alternatively, if the asker has been going through a period of stress or anxiety, this card reversed is a reminder to tend to their inner garden. They should be compassionate and gentle with themselves. This includes spending time creating a peaceful space in their home or practicing gratitude for the beautiful and simple things around them. It is also a sign for the asker to allow others to care for them. Many of us have a blockage when it comes to receiving love. It is time for the asker to open themselves up to the people in their life.

THE KING OF PENTACLES

The King of Pentacles represents worldly success, manifesting goals and financial abundance. This archetype is grounded, loyal and patient. He has mastered the art money and trusts himself to bring projects to fruition.

This card indicates the asker has recently finalized a creative endeavour, investment or financial undertaking. It is a moment to celebrate and honour what they have accomplished through sheer hard work and determination.

The King of Pentacles can also serve as a reminder to be patient in the pursuit of dreams; with proper planning and a methodological approach, success will follow. The asker is encouraged to practice gratitude during this period and honour the value of the money they have worked so hard for. Choose quality over quantity.

THE KING OF PENTACLES REVERSED

The King of Pentacles reversed invites the asker to reflect on their relationship with money and how much importance they are placing on finances. They may be overly focused and rigid about their attempts to acquire wealth, thereby neglecting other areas in their life. This card can also indicate someone in the asker's life is portraying these tendencies.

If the asker is working toward a goal, this card asks them to be extremely decisive and clear about their direction. They are encouraged to take time to plan their objectives, breaking them down into manageable sized pieces that are realistic. This will enable them to commit to their goals, while also enjoying balance in life.

Minor

ARCANA

CUPS

THE ACE OF CUPS

The Aces point to new beginnings. The Ace of Cups represents love, renewal, emotional wellbeing and creative expression. It's a beautiful card signifying a period of connection and fulfillment.

The asker may be about to enter a new relationship or exciting partnership. There is a positive flow of energy and comradery with the Ace of Cups. It can also point to a mutually beneficial friendship that brings happiness and deep emotional satisfaction.

This card is a compassionate one; it symbolizes a time of giving with love and open arms. The asker is encouraged to look at ways they can share their gifts with others.

The Ace of Cups can also be associated with fertility and abundance; a child could be conceived or born, or the asker may be birthing a new creation or project.

THE ACE OF CUPS REVERSED

The Ace of Cups reversed can signal the asker feels an emotional blockage. They may be going through a period where they are repressing emotions, or having trouble expressing themselves to a loved one; or even, creatively. There is a fear that being too open could lead to hurt or rejection in a relationship.

This card also signifies the asker should take time to engage in activities they love, to get their creativity and joy flowing again. It is a time to practice self-love, self-expression and connect with their intuition. The asker should consider journaling as a way to reflect on what is blocking them, and risk being vulnerable with others.

THE TWO OF CUPS

The Twos represent relationships, balance and harmony. The Two of Cups specifically signifies harmony in relationships and open communication. The symbol of this card is two hearts, indicating the asker is in a special union that feels fulfilling and mutually beneficial, whether it be a lover, friendship or business partnership. An engagement or marriage may be near. It can also mean there will soon be a new blossoming relationship in the asker's life that will feel peaceful and harmonious.

The Two of Cups is a sign to engage in open communication with loved ones. The asker is encouraged to review their current relationships and clear up any miscommunications. This includes taking accountability for what is in their control. It is also a great time to express love and appreciation for others.

THE TWO OF CUPS REVERSED

The Two of Cups represents a lack of harmony or disconnection. If the asker is single, they may be waiting for that perfect partner who will complete them. This card signifies that at the basis of all successful partnerships are two individuals who fully love themselves. The asker is invited to practice self-acceptance and foster a sense of wholeness until that relationship comes into their life.

If they are in a relationship or have a potential love interest, the Two of Cups indicates there may be an imbalance or disconnection. They must reflect on whether their needs are being met. Loving themselves means standing strong through self-expression; or, it sometimes signals the need to walk away. The asker is encouraged to listen to their intuition.

THE THREE OF CUPS

The Three of Cups is a positive card that represents celebration, joy and festivities. The asker may have an upcoming celebration, whether it be a birthday, milestone event or party. It can show up as a reminder to gather with loved ones and enjoy lighthearted fun and joyous activities; something as simple as planning a night in with friends, enjoying good food and company.

The Three of Cups also calls on us to review the energy we are bringing into our interactions with others. How are we elevating those around us? Are we fostering joy, positivity and light? The asker is encouraged to practice the art of expressing their charisma; they have a brightness within that is longing to be seen.

If the asker has recently been going through a challenging period, this card indicates the outcome will be positive. There is light at the end of the tunnel.

THE THREE OF CUPS REVERSED

The Three of Cups reversed could signal a period where the asker feels isolated, or is keeping to themselves. They may be overwhelmed with responsibilities and work, or have not had the chance to connect with friends and family for social occasions. Alternatively, they might feel they are not getting along with their group of friends and prefer staying in.

This card is a reminder to reconnect with joy and activities that bring pleasure. It may tell the asker to push themselves outside their comfort zone, and reach out to someone they feel they have a lot in common with.

Creatively, this card may signify a project that is best worked on independently, rather than in a group.

THE FOUR OF CUPS

The Four of Cups represents boredom, self-isolation and blockage. The asker may currently feel dissatisfied with their routine, unmotivated or stuck in a rut. This card signifies there are opportunities flowing toward the asker, but they have shut themselves off from receiving these gifts. This may be a result of having been hurt or rejected in the past, or because they feel these projects are not aligned with their larger goals.

This card is a reminder for the asker to fully immerse themselves in the present moment and not look too far ahead. What blessings are in front of them that they can be grateful for? The Four of Cups is also an invitation to take time to review what motivates them and align with their inner vision. Keep an eye open for new possibilities that will emerge; an opportunity may soon be around the corner.

THE FOUR OF CUPS REVERSED

The Four of Cups symbolizes the asker has been cutting themselves off from others, or going through a period of withdrawal. They may be feeling discouraged, stuck or disheartened. This card is a sign to see the support and love already surrounding them, and allow others in. Perhaps someone has been offering help, but the asker is resistant out of fear of being too vulnerable. They may also feel they can navigate these challenges alone. They are encouraged to open their eyes and see that much of what they seek is right in front of them, perhaps not in the exact place they are looking.

THE FIVE OF CUPS

The Five of Cups represents self-pity, loss or regret. The asker may have recently gone through a challenging experience; perhaps a relationship or friendship ended, or they are currently apart from a loved one. They feel stuck in the past and cannot seem to let go of hurt and sadness. This card is a reminder that it is ok to feel these negative emotions and to give space for grieving. However, it is also a sign to not wallow too long in self-pity; things are not as bad as they seem. The asker is encouraged to keep a positive eye on the future and focus on the blessings that currently surround them.

THE FIVE OF CUPS REVERSED

The Five of Cups reversed suggests the asker may have recently faced a challenge or setback. This card is a reminder to look at the situation from a wider perspective and remember that everything that happens in life is happening for us, not to us. The challenge may have been part of a redirection from the Universe. There is always a silver lining, or opportunity for tremendous growth when things don't go as intended. The Five of Cups tells the asker they can't change the past, but before long, they will experience a greater understanding of what happened. Practice self-forgiveness.

THE SIX OF CUPS

The Six of Cups represents nostalgia, childlike joy and happy memories. The asker is encouraged to look back at the beautiful moments in their life when they felt contentment or bliss. As adults, it is easy to lose sight of the wonder we felt as a child. This card is a reminder to engage in activities that bring a sense of fun and freedom. When we reflect on our past, we often remember the negative experiences; the Six of Cups is a chance to reminisce on the wonderful moments. If there are children in the asker's life, it is also an opportunity to play or spend time with them, and observe life once again through the eyes of a child.

This card can also signify that someone from the asker's past will return and have a positive impact on them. It can be a friend who has been away, or a mentor.

THE SIX OF CUPS REVERSED

The Six of Cups reversed is a sign the asker is letting past experiences dictate their future. This could point to issues or traumas experienced in childhood or past relationships. The asker is reminded that we always have an opportunity to create new meaning from the stories of our past, and start anew in the present moment. This does not mean repressing memories and experiences, but rather, facing them head-on. As such, the support of others or counselling may be required.

The Six of Cups may also mean the asker is dwelling on positive experiences in the past, perhaps with an ex-partner. Nostalgia and reflection is not a bad thing, but remember not to miss out on present opportunities.

THE SEVEN OF CUPS

The Seven of Cups represents dreams, fantasies and choices. The asker may be brimming with creativity and excitement about potential new projects or opportunities. They could be spending considerable time daydreaming or discussing new ideas. This card is a reminder to carefully review all options, as they may not be as bright as they seem. Once the asker feels confident about one path, this card is a sign to take grounded action to bring their visions to reality! They may be feeling overwhelmed or have a sense of not knowing where to start. The key is to take measured action in the direction of their dreams, even if it feels like a baby step. If the asker intuitively feels a project is destined for them, this card serves as encouragement to see it through.

THE SEVEN OF CUPS REVERSED

The Seven of Cups reversed is about choices. The asker may currently feel trapped by their circumstances and confused about next steps; or perhaps they have been going through the motions of daily life, forgetting or delaying taking steps toward their goals and dreams. This card reminds the asker they have more options than they think. They are encouraged to reconnect with their larger objectives and drive their decision-making forward, even if it is scary in the moment.

THE EIGHT OF CUPS

The Eight of Cups represents living in alignment with our truth, instincts and walking away from disappointing situations. The asker may have recently left a job, relationship or friendship that was not fulfilling; or, they are on the brink of making a major decision. They have been worried about hurting someone, but know deep down that this is the best course of action for themselves.

This card is a reminder to let instincts and intuition lead the way in decision-making. Leaving a situation that is not fulfilling is never easy. If the asker has recently been avoiding a situation, the Eight of Cups assures them they have the strength to face reality. It is time to make the change. Remember, all endings will create space for new beginnings that can be more fulfilling and soul enriching. Trust that you will be supported during that space in between.

THE EIGHT OF CUPS REVERSED

The Eight of Cups reveals the asker feels stuck in a situation, whether it be an unhappy relationship, job or other area. They are experiencing a period of stagnation and are afraid to make a change out of fear of the unknown. They are choosing stability over following their heart.

This card reminds the asker to reconnect with their intuition and strength. Although remaining in the same situation feels like the safe choice, over time it will become more and more uncomfortable. Take the leap.

THE NINE OF CUPS

The Nine of Cups represents appreciation, The Nine of Cups represents appreciation, fulfilled dreams and life's pleasures. This card signifies the asker has achieved a goal or is feeling content in their relationships, career or another area. The Nine of Cups promises material and emotional satisfaction. It is time to savour life's pleasures. It can also point to the beginning of a very sensual romance or an engagement.

If the asker has been feeling down or sulking about their circumstances, this card serves as a reminder to embrace the beauty around them. Express gratitude and consider journaling on recent blessings. As one increasingly focuses on the good, positivity and abundance will multiply. abundance will multiply.

THE NINE OF CUPS REVERSED

The Nine of Cups reversed signals a lack of fulfillment, or a feeling that the asker's dreams have not manifested the inner happiness they hoped for. The asker may have focused their attention on achieving outward success, such as material gains or prestige, but are left feeling subtle emptiness. This card encourages them to get in touch with what truly matters, and reflect on the mark they want to make on the world. This is a good time to think about what to contribute to others, and also reconnect with loved ones.

THE TEN OF CUPS

The Ten of Cups represents happiness, family unity and personal fulfillment. This card suggests the asker is experiencing a happy life at home or within their family. There is connection and unity with loved ones, and a general sense of harmony. The Ten of Cups symbolizes living in alignment within relationships and a sense of wholeness. This is a positive omen if the asker is getting married or moving in with a partner.

This card can also serve as a reminder for the asker to see the abundance and magic around them. Perhaps they have gotten lost in the daily routines and responsibilities at home, and have not taken the chance to slow down to appreciate the beauty they have created in their life. The asker is encouraged to express appreciation and love for those they care about.

THE TEN OF CUPS REVERSED

The Ten of Cups reversed signifies disconnection, or being on a different page from a loved one or partner. Periods of instability or discord in relationships are difficult, but provide an opportunity for growth and greater intimacy. The asker is encouraged to seek common ground and express their needs. It is also a time for them to reflect on whether they are living in alignment with their truth and values. Sometimes, it's easier to concede what we believe in to maintain harmony in a relationship. Look for clues in the other cards.

THE PAGE OF CUPS

The Page of Cups represents creative expression, intuition and curiosity. This card marks new beginnings and exploration. The asker is encouraged to delve into their creativity and self-expression without allowing the inner critic to overshadow the process. This can include artistic endeavours, exploring new sides of spirituality or sharing their voice through writing or speaking. The Page of Cups is symbolized by the inner child and reconnecting with that innocence and openness.

This card is also a reminder for the asker to tune into their intuition and to follow psychic hints or insights they are receiving. Look for synchronicities and messages from the Universe. This is a time to follow your own path.

THE PAGE OF CUPS REVERSED

The Page of Cups reversed indicates the asker is brewing creative ideas and projects, but is afraid to share them with the world, fearing criticism or failure. They are experiencing self-doubt and keeping their plans under wraps.

The card may also suggest the asker feels creatively blocked due to perfectionism. They are encouraged to reconnect with their initial joy and passion for undertaking their projects, and let that inspiration flow freely. It is a time to be fearless and share ideas with others!

THE KNIGHT OF CUPS

The Knight of Cups represents romance, creativity and beauty. This archetype is poetic, intuitive and in touch with his emotions. He views life through the eyes of a romantic who seeks to create love and fully express emotion. This card is a sign that the asker may be moving forward with a creative project they have intuitively felt compelled to manifest. They are following their heart and taking steps to make their vision flourish. The Knight of Cups suggests the asker is on the right path. They are encouraged to lead based on their intuitive emotions.

This card can also show up as a reminder to be vulnerable and express love to those around them. It can sometimes feel scary to bear our soul, but this bravery will allow for greater intimacy and connection.

THE KNIGHT OF CUPS REVERSED

The Knight of Cups reversed indicates the asker has been feeling very emotional. They may be a dreamer at heart, but feel their outer reality is not matching the vision they had for their life. They are allowing their emotions to run their decisions.

This card encourages the asker to take a step back and find a way to release the heavy emotions they are carrying. They are invited to take a deeper look at their needs and feelings before jumping to conclusions and making decisions too quickly.

THE QUEEN OF CUPS

The Queen of Cups represents emotions, femininity and intuition. This archetype embraces her sensitive nature and shows empathy and compassion for herself, the ecosystem and others. This card reminds the asker to honour their sensitivity, and allow themselves to feel the full spectrum of emotions that make up the human experience. Sensitivity is a gift that will bring about a new world. It allows us to connect and empathize with the suffering of others.

This card is also a sign for the asker to trust their intuition and heart. All the answers to their questions lie within. It can be easy to be swayed by the opinion of others, but the Queen of Cups communicates the need to stand strong in their truth and light.

THE QUEEN OF CUPS REVERSED

The Queen of Cups reversed tells the asker to focus on their emotional wellbeing and treat themselves with love, compassion and caring. They may be highly sensitive or an empath, always prioritizing the needs of others. This card encourages the asker to take time to listen to their intuition and honour their feelings. They may have trouble expressing themselves and often bottle up their emotions. There is tremendous beauty in the deep sentiments of the Queen of Cups. Find healthy outlets for expression and release.

THE KING OF CUPS

The King of Cups represents emotional intelligence, maturity and balance. This archetype is in touch with his feelings, intuitive and forgiving. This card indicates the asker is able to balance their head and heart in relationships, or, serves as a reminder to remain level-headed and calm when faced with interpersonal conflict. It is a sign to bring compassion and forgiveness to disagreements, but also preserve personal boundaries and express needs. The King of Cups is able to masterfully strike the balance between honouring thyself and cultivating harmony in relationships.

The King of Cups is also a reminder to not repress emotions. It's essential to fully feel sadness, hurt and fear, as well as happiness, fulfillment and joy. We often avoid emotions, worried they will engulf us. By allowing ourselves the space to be human, we see that feelings rarely remain the same for very long. Allowing our emotions to just be is the first step toward forgiveness and transformation.

THE KING OF CUPS REVERSED

The King of Cups reversed symbolizes someone emotional, yet strong, who is having difficulty remaining steady throughout challenging times or life changes. The asker may be someone who prides themselves on personal development, but is having a hard time keeping moodiness or anxious tendencies at bay. This card is a sign that calm and centeredness can only be found within. Meditation and journaling could be helpful practices.

The King of Cups may also represent a male figure in the asker's life who is emotionally manipulative. The latter has the opportunity to demonstrate compassion, while maintaining firm boundaries to avoid taking on further emotional responsibilities.

Minor

ARCANA

WANDS

THE ACE OF WANDS

The Aces represent new beginnings. The Ace of Wands signifies breakthroughs, personal growth and potential. The asker is brimming with new ideas, inspiration and motivation. They have dreams they want to manifest into reality. This card is a signal to go forward! There is a tremendous opportunity for personal fulfillment. It's a great time to begin planting the seeds for these goals and move forward with confidence and self-belief. Consider bringing in crystals or cleansing a work space for added support.

This card is also a sign the asker may be entering a new phase of personal or spiritual development, including beginning therapy, a new class or further expanding their spiritual knowledge. The energy surrounding the asker is supporting this sacred phase.

THE ACE OF WANDS REVERSED

The Ace of Wands reversed indicates the asker is filled with creative ideas and passion, but may feel stuck or unsure of where to begin. They feel they want to make a change in their career and purpose, but are lacking direction or focus.

This card signifies the asker is on the cusp of a new beginning! It is a reminder for them to take a step back and reconnect with their passion without worrying about where it will lead. This will help bring clarity over time. If the asker takes small steps every day toward their new life without worrying about the final destination, the road will become clearer.

THE TWO OF WANDS

The Twos represent relationships, balance and harmony. The Two of Wands signifies planning, choices and exploration. The asker may be overflowing with new ideas and not know where to start. This is a time for research, exploration and long-term planning. Establishing a step-by-step action plan will provide the right foundation for future success. Opportunities will soon show up in business or real-estate.

The Two of Wands can also symbolize a decision with two opposing paths. The asker will have to choose between their head and their heart. They are being called to tune into their intuition and inner guidance system. This card reminds them that while their decision may feel it will dictate their happiness, true peace and contentment come from within and can be fostered regardless. The Universe is offering support.

THE TWO OF WANDS REVERSED

The Two of Wands reversed can represent indecision; specifically when weighing two potential options, whether they involve the asker's career, love life, or a move.

It can also indicate the asker is consumed with worry about the future, but is not taking practical steps to plan for change. The Two of Wands reminds us to make a distinction between things we can and cannot control, and to let go of stress over the latter. The asker is invited to take a step back, revisit the drawing board, relax, and create a new plan from a place of calm and centeredness. They are encouraged to reflect on what is truly important and what they seek to manifest in their life.

THE THREE OF WANDS

The Three of Wands represents possibility, big dreams and clarity of vision. The asker is invited to become crystal clear on what they want to manifest in life. The world is their canvas and they have the opportunity to bring endless possibilities into existence. There has been positive movement forward on projects, and the asker may be presented with opportunities to broaden their knowledge or experience. This card is a signal to keep forging ahead with a detailed strategy and focus! It is also time to remain centered and tune into their inner voice.

Furthermore, the Three of Wands can symbolize long-distance travel, adventure or a holiday romance; situations that broaden one's horizons with self-confidence and openness.

THE THREE OF WANDS REVERSED

The Three of Wands reversed indicates thwarted progress or disappointment with the outcome of the asker's projects. Perhaps unforeseen issues are arising, or the asker is feeling overwhelmed with the pace at which things are manifesting.

This card can also signify playing it safe; a lack of adventure and expansion.

The asker is encouraged to cultivate acceptance and joy in the present moment, and restructure their approach to deal with problems that are arising. They may need to reach out to others who have the expertise that could support them on their path.

THE FOUR OF WANDS

The Four of Wands reversed can signify the asker has recently reached an important goal, but has not taken time to celebrate the achievement.

This card reminds the asker to acknowledge how far they have come. If they have been working hard toward a goal that has yet to reach completion, this is a sign to keep up the strong effort. Do not let perfectionism get in the way.

This card reversed can also indicate insecurity in the asker's home environment, with family members or a love interest. Perhaps they are in a period of transition with their living situation or in their close relationships. The asker is encouraged to be patient and take what they feel is the right next step.

THE FOUR OF WANDS REVERSED

The Four of Wands reversed can signify the asker has recently reached an important goal, but has not taken time to celebrate the achievement.

This card reminds the asker to acknowledge how far they have come. If they have been working hard toward a goal that has yet to reach completion, this is a sign to keep up the strong effort. Do not let perfectionism get in the way.

This card reversed can also indicate insecurity in the asker's home environment, with family members or a love interest. Perhaps they are in a period of transition with their living situation or in their close relationships.

THE FIVE OF WANDS

The Five of Wands represents disharmony, conflict or competition. This card indicates the asker may be in a frustrating situation where they feel constant opposition to their plans or efforts. They may feel like nothing is going as they envisioned, and delays are encountered at every turn. This card tells them to open an honest dialogue with others and to practice active listening. Even if the asker feels they are not the perpetrator in the situation, they have the opportunity to extend an olive branch and set aside pride for the betterment of the whole. It is a moment to halt any competition or the need to compare.

This card is also a reminder to be vigilant and review details twice to avoid future miscommunications. The asker is encouraged to remain strong and patient; they will be able to overcome challenges with diplomacy and courage.

THE FIVE OF WANDS REVERSED

The Five of Wands reversed indicates a period of conflict, disagreement or heightened stress is coming to an end. The asker can breathe a sigh of relief; a stage of compromise and cooperation has been reached.

If the asker feels there is still some unease within a relationship or business association, it may signify they are attempting to avoid conflict. This card encourages them to address the issue openly and diplomatically to achieve resolution.

The Five of Wands reversed also reminds the asker not to get lost in the comparison game with others. They must stay focused on their own path.

THE SIX OF WANDS

The Six of Wands represents achievement, public recognition and self-confidence. This card shows up to remind the asker to fully embrace their gifts, talents and successes. It is ok to allow our light to shine bright and share our achievements with others and the world. It is time to step fully into self-confidence and not worry about losing love or relationships as a result. The asker may be surprised by how much people recognize and celebrate their victories.

This card also tells them to believe in themselves. We all were born with a unique life purpose, and those dreams would never have been given to us if we were not meant to achieve them. Stop playing small; the world is ready to see the asker's greatness! This card also promises success if they continue to work toward their dreams.

THE SIX OF WANDS REVERSED

The Six of Wands reversed reminds the asker to stay focused on their own journey without being swayed by society's metrics of success. They may have recently achieved something important to them, which may not be considered significant by others. This card tells them to look within for validation and truth. When we become grounded in who we are and what matters to us, we will be less discouraged by what others think about our decisions and goals.

The Six of Wands reversed may also signify the asker has been experiencing a loss of confidence or self-belief. They are encouraged to reflect on their growth and what they have overcome.

THE SEVEN OF WANDS

The Seven of Wands represents integrity, competition and protection. The asker may be facing a situation where external forces are coming in the way of what they built; this could include people who are jealous of their success, or running into bureaucracy on a creative project. This card is a reminder to lead from integrity and take the high road. When we are attacked, it is easy to become involved in the drama or conflict. The Seven of Wands is an indication to take the high road and lead by example. The asker is encouraged to set boundaries and stand up for what they believe in, but from a place of stillness and inner peace.

It is time to take value-aligned action. Have a risk management plan in place to avoid and foresee potential issues in the future.

THE SEVEN OF WANDS REVERSED

The Seven of Wands reversed signifies the asker has been bearing the weight of the world on their shoulders. They may be feeling isolated, or as though everyone is against them. They are experiencing a lack of support from others. This card encourages the asker to be more vulnerable with those around them by sharing their struggles. Asking for help is a sign of strength.

This Seven of Wands reversed may also indicate the asker is yielding or going back on their beliefs and values because of external pressures. Standing up for what we believe in can sometimes involve losing the validation of others. The asker is encouraged to examine whether they are being true to themselves.

THE EIGHT OF WANDS

The Eight of Wands represents forward movement, momentum and action. This card suggests stalled projects and endeavours will be picking up at great speed. Momentum has finally arrived! The asker is encouraged to tackle tasks they've been procrastinating on, confront challenges, and set up a routine that supports their productivity. Focus and determination are key at this time.

This card also signals new possibilities and opportunities will arrive unexpectedly. Ride the wave and practice self-belief and confidence. This is a moment for the asker to capitalize on all their hard work.

THE EIGHT OF WANDS REVERSED

The Eight of Wands reversed often indicates there is a flurry of activity and responsibilities in the asker's life. They feel they are being pulled in a million directions by work and home life. This card is a reminder to step back and breathe. Make time for meditation and reflection. Things flow much easier when tasks are undertaken one at a time.

The Eight of Wands reversed also signifies the asker should stay focused on the tasks that are most important to them. Our attention is often diverted to the most urgent tasks, while the goals dearest to our hearts get pushed to the sidelines. The asker is encouraged to avoid distractions, be patient and slowly work toward their bigger dreams.

THE NINE OF WANDS

The Nine of Wands represents boundaries, resilience and courage. The asker may be feeling worn down by life's tribulations, or as though they cannot catch a break. They have endured significant challenges along their path that have made them question their faith and direction. This card is a sign from the Universe to never give up; the asker is so close to the finish line. The Nine of Wands reminds us to courageously stand firm in who we are, protect our boundaries and what we have built. It is a time to stay true to oneself and to practice the word no. It's not the best time for drastic changes; the asker is encouraged to remain strong and still. They are protected by their guides. Move forward with faith.

THE NINE OF WANDS REVERSED

The Nine of Wands reversed signifies the asker may be confining themselves with limiting beliefs or victim stories. The asker has been feeling life is against them, and perceives they have been dealt a bad hand. Now is the time to review their mindset and reframe what is happening to them. What could the situations in their life be teaching them right now? Remember, everything happens for our greater good and soul expansion.

The Nine of Wands may also be a sign that we are closer than we think to a positive outcome. Perhaps the asker feels they are in the middle of the woods and cannot see the finish line. This card encourages them to strengthen their mindset and keep going. They are almost there!

THE TEN OF WANDS

The Ten of Wands represents burden, responsibility and service to others. This card often shows up when the asker feels worn down by stress and expectations placed on them by others or themselves. They have too much on their plate and are working at a speed that is unsustainable. The Ten of Wands reminds the asker to be easy on themselves and not define their self-worth by productivity or their ability to serve others.

The Ten represents the completion of a cycle; this card indicates the weight of these responsibilities will soon become lighter. However, the asker is invited to let go and be real with themselves about what they can handle, or what is not theirs to carry. Embrace self-care, relaxation and enjoy the fruits of hard work.

THE TEN OF WANDS REVERSED

The Ten of Wands reversed signifies the asker has been working very hard for an extended period of time, while carrying responsibility and burdens for others.

They are trying to do everything by themselves, causing a lot of mental stress. This card tells the asker they can find a release from unnecessary responsibilities, and delegate some activities to others. Life is not all about the grind; the asker must take time to engage in activities they love, that reconnect them with the joyful parts of life. Cultivate inner playfulness.

THE PAGE OF WANDS

The Page of Wands represents sparks of creativity, inspiration and energy. The asker may be experiencing the excitement of new ideas, big goals and an eagerness to achieve their dreams. This card shows up as a reminder that anything is possible with a solid plan and grounded action. There is an opportunity for the asker to tap into their full potential and unlock any talents or gifts they have not yet shared with the world.

This card also has a very spiritual nature, signifying the asker is unlocking deep truths for the first time. The dots are beginning to connect, and they are feeling inspired and curious to learn more. This is an excellent time to expand knowledge and reach out to healers, mentors or energy workers for support or mentorship.

THE PAGE OF WANDS REVERSED

The Page of Wands reversed indicates ideas for new projects and ventures are brewing. The asker may feel stalled and unsure of how to execute their vision. This card signifies they have pursued ideas in the past, which did not turn out the way they expected. The asker is reminded not to let fear get in the way of their goals. The Page of Wands is a sign to take a disciplined and methodical approach; create a step-by-step plan to execute systematically and patiently. This is a card about believing in yourself!

THE KNIGHT OF WANDS

The Knight of Wands represents adventure, pursuit and passion. This card signifies the asker may be in a period where they are charging ahead with a creative project. They are enthusiastic, determined and willing to explore the horizons that exist outside their comfort zone. Alternatively, this card can serve as a reminder to push past any fears or personal limitations on the road to manifesting dreams.

The Knight of Wands can also indicate travel and the urge for adventure. It is time to embrace spontaneity and fearlessness. If travel is not possible, the asker is encouraged to try new activities and break free from their routine.

THE KNIGHT OF WANDS REVERSED

The Knight of Wands reversed can signify the asker has a build-up of creative energy and motivation, but feels confused on how to best channel it. They may be experiencing indecision when it comes to determining the best steps to further their endeavours.

This card also indicates the asker has worked hard on themselves internally. Now is the time to apply the lessons they have learned to move ahead in their life. Look for answers within, and see how this wisdom can help navigate the impasses that may be encountered.

THE QUEEN OF WANDS

The Queen of Wands represents self-confidence, independence and courage. This archetype is charismatic, powerful and comfortable standing in her truth. She doesn't make apologies for who she is or what she stands for. This card symbolizes the growth that takes place along the journey to becoming a strong and self-assured individual. The Queen of Wands embodies those qualities after enduring challenge and rejection.

This card reminds the asker they have worked hard on themselves and made great progress. They embody so many of the Queen of Wands' qualities; now is the time to shine their light and share their voice without fear of judgement or criticism. They are encouraged to put themselves out there, make new connections and open up to the possibility of being the center of attention. It may feel scary or overwhelming, but the moment has arrived for the asker to courageously step into their full power.

THE QUEEN OF WANDS REVERSED

The Queen of Wands reversed can signify the asker is experiencing low self-confidence and self-belief. They have been hiding physically and emotionally, isolating themselves from others. The asker fears rejection and is more comfortable cocooning in a safe space.

This card reversed is a reminder to allow others to see your light. Everyone feels fear, but the asker is encouraged to push themselves and take a chance. It is time for them to share their gifts with the world. Now is the time!

THE KING OF WANDS

The King of Wands represents vision and competence. This archetype has experienced a great deal of challenges in his life; he has worked tirelessly toward his ideals and endured hardship. This has emboldened him with the wisdom and foresight to become a visionary leader. The King of Wands card signifies the asker is competent and capable. They have worked hard to get to where they are; and although they may experience feelings of imposter syndrome, they have more than earned their seat at the table. The asker has the ability to truly influence and inspire others, and is ready to build a team of people to help them achieve their vision. This card suggests the asker is truly ready to bring their goals to the next level, and can fully step into a position of leadership.

This card also shows up as a reminder to trust oneself. The asker's intuition knows the way; this is a time to fully embrace their strengths and wisdom, which will enable them to make a huge difference in the world.

THE KING OF WANDS REVERSED

The King of Wands reversed can indicate the asker has been put in a leadership position or has spearheaded a project, but is experiencing imposter syndrome. They are feeling unworthy to lead, and may be doubting their capabilities and strength.

This card reminds the asker they are more than capable to be a leader. They must let go of the need for perfectionism or lack of self-belief when it comes to qualifications. The asker is encouraged to refrain from setting expectations on themselves that are too high. It is time to be realistic and work methodically with others toward their goals.